

Overview of types of procedures of procurement by specific sectors (COM(2011) 895)

Types of procedures	Open procedure	Restricted procedure	Negotiated procedure with prior call for competition	Innovation partnership	Negotiated procedure without prior call for competition
Usability	in all Member States	in all Member States	in all Member States	subject to transposition into national law	subject to transposition into national law
Scope of application	all contracts	all contracts	all contracts	development and purchase of innovative products, construction purposes and services	-a publication is not possible in due time due to force majeure -a publication would not lead to more competition
Possible award criteria	-the most economically advantageous tender -the most cost-efficient life cycle -the lowest price (where implemented into national law)	-the most economically advantageous tender -the most cost-effective life cycle -the lowest price (where implemented into national law)	-the most economically advantageous tender -the most cost-effective life cycle -the lowest price (where implemented into national law)	-the most economically advantageous tender -the most cost-effective life cycle	not regulated
Publication by call for competition	yes	yes	yes	yes	no
Procedures of submission of tenders	tender	-application to participate -in case of selection: tender	-application to participate -in case of selection: dialogue -tender	-application to participate -in case of selection: dialogue -tender	not regulated
Award	award in compliance with the defined award criteria				not regulated